GEORGE I. BANKS, AUCTIONEER.

CARD.

For many years it has been our aim to improve as rapidly as we consistently could upon the character and value of paintings accepted by us for sale by auction ; in order to accomplish this, we have refused many thousand works that did not, in our estimation, come up to our standard of quality.

The collection as per within Catalogue which we now present to our customers and to the art-loving public, we think far exceeds in every way any previous exhibit in our Gallery.

It will be noticed that, with extremely few exceptions, all of the works in this collection have been painted within ten years, and more than half within half that period, and in many instances represent the master work of living artists, particularly American.

A critical examination of the collection will, we think, demonstrate the assertion by us that we have never had the pleasure of displaying a collection representing as much money and in every way so desirable.

Respectfully,

BARKER ART GALLERY.

GEO. I. BANKS, Auctioneer.

A Thrilling Moment.

1825

GEO. I. BANKS, Esq.

MY DEAR SIR :

In answer to your inquiry about the J. G. Brown's "Thrilling Moment," formerly owned by my wife, I would say that Mr. Brown borrowed the picture from Mrs. D., in the summer of 1883, to send to the Munich Exhibition. He had to contend long and hard before we would permit it to leave our walls, and only would we do it after he had stated that it was his proudest and best work, and the only one he desired to send. He returned it in December of last year, after an absence of six months.

At the time the picture was bought, Mr. Knoedler wrote me, asking the privilege of engraving it, which, of course, was declined.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN H. DEANE.
